

Hindenburg Seen As Easy Winner Tomorrow In German Election

REQUIRES ONLY PLURALITY TO RETAIN OFFICE

Hitler Making Desperate Effort to Wrest Presidency from Him

Berlin (AP)—The second political battle of von Hindenburg vs. Hitler, the greatest electoral contest in the history of Germany, was all but ended today as more than 37,000,000 voters prepared again to elect a president of the reich.

In contrast with that which preceded the first (and indecisive) election four weeks ago, the campaign for tomorrow's voting has been brief but bitter. Held down by the decree proclaiming a political truce over the Easter holidays, it did not begin until last Sunday.

Followers of von Hindenburg, the 84-year-old former field marshal of the kaiser's armies, were confident today that he would win. They based their confidence on the fact that he fell short of a clear majority over all candidates in the election of March 13 by only 174,328 out of 37,658,936 votes. In tomorrow's election a simple plurality will elect him.

Two of the five candidates who participated in the March election have withdrawn. Lieutenant-Colonel Theodore Duestenberg, candidate of the steel helmet organization, and Adolf Gustav Winter, Revaluationist, declined to make the second race. The three who remain on the ballot are: Paul von Hindenburg, non-partisan; Adolf Hitler, National Socialist; and Ernst Thaelmann, Communist.

Hitler Only Threat

The battle between Hindenburg and Hitler, who was runner-up in the March election but who trailed the veteran field marshal by more than 7,000,000 votes.

Hitler has been travelling by airplane and breaking all speech-making records, making four a day in an effort to lap 4,000,000 of the more than 17,000,000 votes received by von Hindenburg in the first election.

Leaders of Hitler's National Socialist party claim they have 1,000,000 members enrolled and they predicted today that Hitler would receive 15,000,000 votes tomorrow.

The Republican "Iron Front" has held 66,000 meetings from one end of Germany to the other in support of von Hindenburg.

Although the week has been remarkably free from disorders, beginning at noon today police reserves will be held in readiness for any emergency until the polls are closed tomorrow night.

The issues remain the same as they were a month ago. Hitler stands for a personal dictatorship, von Hindenburg for building up and developing the German republic along the paths marked out by the late Gustav Stresemann, and the present chancellor, Heinrich Brüning. Ernst Thaelmann, the Communist candidate, who polled just short of 5,000,000 votes in the last election, stands for a dictatorship of the proletariat patterned upon that at Moscow.

Differ on Raids

Adherents of the two major contestants were of two minds as to the effect of the spectacular raids recently made on the National Socialist meeting places in Prussia and elsewhere. The Nazis called them unfair campaign tactics and their opponents welcomed the police announcement that the raids disclosed plans for forcible seizure of the government.

Hardly severing, who directed the raids for the government, announced the police had seized documents outlining in great detail the National Socialist plans for mobilizing the "storm troops," seizing the transportation and communication systems and plunging the country into civil war. The Nazi leaders said there was no truth in any of these charges and that most of the documents were forged.

IKE WALTONS PLAN BOOSTER MEETING

Gathering to Be Held at Greenville Next Thursday Night

Plans for a booster meeting at Greenville next Thursday evening were outlined at a meeting of directors of the Outagamie-co chapter, Izaak Walton League, in the valley council boy scout offices Friday night. A large delegation of Appleton League members is expected to gather at the E. W. Shannon store on E. College-ave at 7:15 next Thursday evening to leave for the meeting in a body.

The group also discussed reformation and educational program and appointed committees. Three new directors, John Lonsdorf, P. G. Weeber and B. J. Rehan were elected.

The program committee is composed of Walter Fox, E. C. Moore, Edgar Milhaupt, Jay Williams, E. W. Shannon and M. G. Clark, and the public committee is composed of Erik Madison and Mr. Clark.

It was reported that 300 pleasant eggs have been ordered for distribution in various sections of the county. The work will be done by C. J. Steidl and R. J. Meyer.

PLAN ANNUAL DRIVE OF SCOUT COUNCIL

Plans for the annual financial campaign of the valley council of boy scouts were discussed at a meeting of team captains in the scout offices Friday evening. The campaign for $4,500 in Appleton and $1,000 in the council area at large will get underway on April 11. It will continue until April 21. Five teams have already been completed.

David George looks quite handsome as a male here, but in "Lucky Breaks," the Haresfoot musical revue which will be presented in Menasha at the Brin theatre on April 12, he takes the part of leading "lady" proving the University of Wisconsin Club's boast "All our girls are men; yet everyone's a lady."

ENJOYS ROLE AS "LEADING LADY"

David George Describes Reactions to Playing Part of Girl

Madison—"Well, I must admit I felt foolish at first stepping out of a regular suit into those little thing-a-ma-jigs isn't the most natural thing in the world—hairy legs and all silk step-ins and biceps and delicate shoulder straps aren't exactly meant for another."

With these words, David George, leading "lady" of the 34th annual production of the Haresfoot Club, "Lucky Breaks," which will play in Menasha at the Brin Theatre, April 12, describes his reactions as he dons the filmy garments of the woman he impersonates in the University of Wisconsin's men's dramatic organization, which has the slogan "All our girls are men, yet everyone's a lady."

"But, Dave," we asked, "after all it's fun to be a female impersonator, isn't it?"

"Don't mention impersonating," was "lady" Dave's retort. "We don't attempt to imitate Julian Eltinge, Karyl Norman, or any of those fellows. Bill Funnell, director of the club, is proud of the fact that Haresfoot has never turned out a professional impersonator. He wants us to be human, natural, and unaffected. 'Lucky Breaks' is essentially a burlesque."

"At first I was a little shy about this 'leading lady' business, afraid of being called effeminate, but I now look at my part with a sense of humor, and get a lot of fun out of playing it," he said earnestly.

SUPERVISORS TO RECOMMEND JURORS

Must Name Four to Six Persons to Serve During Year 1932

Supervisors of towns, villages, and cities in the county have been notified by Judge Theodore Berg of municipal court, through Sydney M. Shannon, clerk of courts, that they are required by law to submit the names of four to six persons to serve as municipal court jurors during the year. Blanks for the purpose have been sent the supervisors.

The court has asked that names of electors over 60 years of age be not submitted unless the supervisors are satisfied eyesight and hearing of the prospective jurors is such that they will be fully competent.

The lists are to be returned to the clerk of courts office before May 1.

PEACE OFFICERS MUST TAKE OATH

Clerk of Court Asks Justices of Peace to Comply With State Law

Warning that many justices of the peace in various county districts have failed to qualify for the office in recent years and that they should do so immediately, has been issued by Sydney M. Shannon, clerk of courts. The warnings have been directed to the various town, village and city clerks in the county.

In order to assist the clerks Mr. Shannon has enclosed blank copies of the justice's oath and bond which are to be filed with the clerk of circuit court for Outagamie-co on or before May 1.

All the justices elected at last Tuesday's election will have to take oath and secure bondsmen.

HONOR TRIAL IS BELIEVED DUE FOR QUICK END

Darrow Strives to Continue Linking Lynching With Assault

Honolulu (AP)—Attorneys voiced hopes today for a swift conclusion of the murder trial of Mrs. Granville Fortescue and three navy men accused of lynching Joseph Kahahawai.

Montgomery Winn, associate of Clarence Darrow in the defense, said they sought a directed verdict, which would make it unnecessary for them to present testimony.

John C. Kelley, public prosecutor, said he would present his case in three days, fighting "as a matter of course" any attempt to link the lynching of Kahahawai Jan. 8 with an assault last September on the daughter of Mrs. Fortescue, Mrs. Thalia Massie, wife of a naval lieutenant.

Darrow has indicated he will strive to hold the two cases together, seeking justification for the slaying of the young Hawaiian in the fact he was one of five men accused of the assault on Mrs. Massie.

The trial will be resumed Monday. So far developments have indicated Darrow's inclination toward an "honor slaying" defense, backed by a plea of emotional insanity. They are: Darrow's quick challenge of the prosecution's contention that the guilt of the slain Hawaiian had no bearing in the hearing; and the arrival of two alienists, Dr. Edward Huntington Williams and Dr. James Orblison of Los Angeles.

"Whitest" Jury

Darrow has displayed his craftiness and it is evident that he is in fine physical condition despite his 75 years. Already his opponents have witnessed his ability to pick a jury—the whitest jury, court attaches say, in the history of the territory.

While the attorneys made ready for the presentation of evidence Monday, court events fed the fires of feeling that have smoldered many months.

Class antagonism flamed after the attack on Mrs. Massie. That was followed by the beating of Horace Ida, a co-defendant with Kahahawai in the assault trial, and then the Kahahawai slaying, in all of which there was conflict between the Hawaiians or orientals on one hand and the navy on the other.

Almost simultaneously, with the beginning of the trial of Mrs. Fortescue, Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, E. J. Lord and Albert O. Jones, the published recommendations of Rear Admiral Yates Stirling, Jr., commander of the Pearl Harbor naval base, drew adverse criticism here.

In the report, Admiral Stirling questioned the loyalty to America of some of the island born orientals, especially the Japanese. They were quick to resent the implication.

Admiral Stirling's recommendations were included in a report on crime conditions in Hawaii by Seth W. Richardson, assistant attorney general of the United States.

BOYD BOOKS ARE EVIDENCE IN CASE

To Be Basis of Testimony by Accountant in Trial at Madison

Madison (AP)—The books of the Joseph M. Boyd Co., defunct investment concern, were introduced as evidence by the prosecution in the preliminary hearing for fire of the firm's directors in superior court here yesterday.

Practically the entire afternoon was consumed in the identification of the books by V. C. Sheehan, former cashier. The books will be the basis of testimony to be given by Fred C. Kellogg, accountant who has studied the Boyd financial structure.

Joseph M. Boyd, Alfred T. Rogers, Dr. C. A. Harper, R. R. Kropf and R. H. Farness are the five directors who face charges involving embezzlement, false advertising and violation of the state securities laws.

After introducing the books the state's attorneys placed bondholders on the stand to substantiate testimony given by other investors. Mrs. C. A. Geldel, Mrs. Mathilda Daugner and William Gannon testified they purchased bonds which were represented to be as "good as gold."

THE WAY FORWARD

That the deflationary movement has not yet been stopped is attested by the fact that during the month of March the value of all shares on the New York Stock Exchange declined another eleven percent and wholesale prices have continued to decline. This is a negation of the policy which Congress, the Administration, and the banks adopted at the beginning of the year when they established the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, passed the Glass-Steagall bill, and declared for a balanced budget. Our declared policy is to stop the deflation of credit and thus to arrest the fall in prices and lay the foundation for a rise in prices. We are compelled to ask ourselves why this policy is not more effective.

It is fairly evident that although the Federal Reserve System now possesses the legal and technical means to do its part in executing this policy, the necessary confidence is lacking to carry it out boldly. A policy of credit expansion depends not merely upon the will of the central bankers to create credit, but also upon the willingness of commercial bankers and business men to use it. The question, therefore, arises as to what are the controlling causes of this lack of confidence.

They are to be found in part, we may suppose, in an indecision within the Federal Reserve System due to divided councils. A policy of deliberate credit expansion is not orthodox banking and if current reports are reliable there is within the Federal Reserve System itself important opposition by reputable but ultra-conservative individuals. This hesitation is reinforced, we may assume, by the fact that although the policy of expansion in the United States as ardently desired by most of the outer world, the Bank of France is believed to be controlled by old and highly orthodox gentlemen who are greatly alarmed at the idea. Their power to withdraw gold is still sufficiently great to make their opposition embarrassing.

Thus it may be said that the policy is stalled by the failure as yet to arrive at unanimity in the central banking circles of France and America.

But this position, this resistance by the very orthodox, is not merely theoretical, is not merely devotion to ancient principle, and is not self calculation. It is due essentially to fear arising out of wider and deeper causes. The policy of credit expansion has for its aim the resumption of production and purchasing. Everywhere in the world governments are pursuing policies which destroy trade, deflate prices, and make the payment of debts difficult. Not much hope can be placed in a policy of expending credit while the nations are engaged in the suicidal efforts to strangle the trade which would justify the use of credit.

On the part of the debtor nations the difficulty of meeting their old obligations at current prices has forced them into a drastic curtailment of their purchases abroad. An extreme illustration of the plight of the debtor countries is provided by Bulgaria: in 1931 the weight of her exports was nearly doubled over 1929 but their value in gold was actually less. The only way for the debtors to keep relatively solvent is to cut down their purchases. On the part of the creditor nations, like the United States and France, the doctrine that the home market should be monopolized has produced an unwillingness to buy. It has, of course, been followed by an inability to sell. With every nation, debtor and creditor alike, trying to cut down imports the exports of all nations have been cut down too. For, though it is hard for the average voter to understand it, each nation's imports are the exports of other nations. If all nations simultaneously attack foreign imports they are bound collectively to bring world trade to a virtual standstill.

There is, in short, an economic war raging in the world and during a war men have little confidence for enterprise. What each man aims at is security and liquidity for himself, which means simply that he will not buy or lend if he can avoid it, and prefers to indulge in some one of the many forms of hoarding.

The economic war is accentuated by the political tension arising out of the uncertainty as to what Europe will do about reparations and

ARMS PARLEY TO BE RESUMED NEXT MONDAY

Conditions Now More Hopeful Than They Were Ten Weeks Ago

Geneva (AP)—The world disarmament conference will resume its labors next Monday under much more hopeful conditions than those which prevailed when it first convened Feb. 2.

The guns which thundered at Shanghai when statesmen gathered here ten weeks ago to talk of reducing armaments are now silent and the situation on the Langtse front is much improved.

Moreover, the confusion and uncertainty which marked the conference opening have yielded to an orderly plan of work.

The conference has been organized into five special commissions to handle problems specifically pertaining to land, sea and air armaments, budgetary questions and political issues. Over these groups the general commission exercises control and assigns to them the tasks.

The dominant European problem, as expressed in the terms "security" and "equality of armaments," has been carefully canvassed, and some effort has been made to come to grips with it. The suggestion of a scheme of Danubian economic co-operation has been advanced by France and examined by all states concerned.

On the technical side, the land, sea and air commissions have already initiated their discussions upon non-political questions; the governments have sent in during the Easter recess more exact explanations of their views and proposals, and these proposals have been laboriously coordinated by the secretariat in a way to simplify the work of the conference.

On reconvening, the conference will attack the questions of principle which constitute its biggest task. These include the broad issues of "security" and "equality." But other questions will be faced, such as abolition of battleships or reduction of their size, outlawing submarines, tanks, heavy artillery and aerial air bombing, to what army budgetary limitation should be applied, treaty limits of land materials by direct enumeration and the question of trained reserves and war materials in reserve.

STIMSON HOPEFUL

New York (AP)—Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson, enroute to Geneva, sees prospects that the coming disarmament conference will agree on "a number of useful measures designed to limit the chances of war."

Sailing last night on the Ile de France to assume leadership of the American delegation at the conference, he said:

"From information which has been brought to me it appears that there is prospect that the conference may be able, ultimately, to agree upon a number of useful measures designed to limit the chances of war."

He was accompanied by Mrs. Stimson, Norman H. Davis, a member of the American delegation, and other officials. Frank B. Kellogg, his predecessor as secretary of state, also sailed to attend the world court at the Hague.

Wisconsin Cooperative Milk Pool Files Incorporation Papers

SEEKS TO MAKE COUNTY CENTER OF ACTIVITIES

Otto Rohm, Black Creek, Temporary Chairman at Organization Meeting

Articles of incorporation for a state-wide milk cooperative were on file Saturday with Theodore Dammann, secretary of state. The Wisconsin Cooperative Milk Pool, were perfected at a meeting of 75 dairymen from 20 counties at Madison Thursday and Friday. Incorporators are H. E. Holmes, Milwaukee; I. M. Wright, Waukesha; J. A. Hogan, Waunakee; Carl Oman, Boscomb; and H. A. Arnold, Sharon.

The purposes of the organization are to obtain by collective bargaining and other means necessary a fair price for milk; to join with organized producers in other states and form a National Milk pool; to secure legislation to encourage collective bargaining; and to obtain and furnish information to members.

Otto Rohm, Black Creek, acted as temporary chairman of the organization, and Edwin Last, Germantown, was temporary secretary. Walter M. Singler, Shiocton, was named general chairman of all state committees. Mr. Singler is one of the leaders in this movement, and hopes to make Outagamieco the center of pool activities.

Full Second Meeting
Another meeting will be held in Madison on Wednesday, June 1, at which time representatives from almost every county in the state will gather to elect officers. The board of directors will be composed of one man from every organized county in the state. A committee was appointed yesterday afternoon to carry on organization of the pool until the June session.

It was pointed out at yesterday's session that the organization does not propose to dump milk, unless it must do so as a last resort. It also was pointed out that the purpose is not to raise the price of the commodity for the consumer, except when it is absolutely necessary. The organization proposes to advertise to increase consumption of dairy products.

Avoids Conflicts
He said contracts will conflict in no way with the existing contracts of any members who might have contracts with other organizations, cooperatives or individuals.

It was decided by the ways and means committee, upon Mr. Singler's suggestion, that a 10 cent tax be imposed on each farmer or dairyman who is a member, for each cow that he has registered, to be paid into the state treasury to further the organization and its membership campaign. This is entirely voluntary and not compulsory, it was stated.

At the present time there are owners of 3,500 cows in Outagamieco, Mr. Singler stated. The membership drive is on, and it is expected to have 70 per cent of the farmers signed up before the June 1 meeting. County meetings are to be held during the interim.

Committees appointed are as follows: Ways and means: H. A. Last, Washington; Harvey Holmes, Vernon; August App, Waukesha; George Keil, Ashland; Jack Satalie, Milwaukee; Charles Morbach, Price; Carl Oman, Grant; H. E. Holmes, Rock; George Stirmel, Walworth; J. T. Russ, Waukegan; J. A. Hogan, Dane; and Roy Bonner, Outagamieco.

Other Committees: M. F. Rheingans, Washington; Harvey Holmes, Vernon; George Schilling, Waukesha; George Keil, Ashland; J. A. Hogan, Dane; J. F. Russ, Wood; George Newman, Price; H. C. Groupman, Outagamie; H. A. Arnold, Walworth; Jack Satalie, Milwaukee; Carl Oman, Grant; and H. E. Holmes, Rock.

Resolutions: H. E. Holmes, Rock; Walter Singler, Outagamie; and Carl Oman, Grant.

Advertising and publicity: Ed Schneider, Washington; A. H. Christman, Washington; Walter Singler, Outagamie; Fred Bergelin, Brown; Albert Hirst, Sauk, and Amos Beckman, Richland.

Organization: Oscar Klumb, Washington; George Keil, Ashland; Carl Oman, Grant; H. A. Arnold, Walworth; J. A. Hogan, Dane; George Zink, Waukegan; R. Beyer, Outagamie; I. F. Russ, Wood; Chris Helgeson, Vernon; Ed Keane, Richland; Henry Dries, Ouzaukee; Charles Morbach, Price; and J. A. Hogan, Dane.

Membership, fees and dues: A. A. Aulenbacher, Washington; J. F. Russ, Wood; H. E. Holmes, Rock; Carl Oman, Grant; Charles Morbach, Price; George Zink, Washington; Walter Singler, Outagamie; Harvey Holmes, Vernon; J. A. Hogan, Dane; and George Keil, Ashland.

Credentials: George Zink, Washington; Edwin Achter, Outagamie; and J. M. Wright, Waukesha.

MUSICAL PROGRAM AT NEXT P. T. A. MEETING

The Roosevelt Parent-Teacher association will present a musical program at the April meeting at 7:45 Monday night at Roosevelt junior high school. Chorus numbers will be given by several sections of the seventh, eighth and ninth grades, under the direction of Dr. Earl Baker. The junior high school band, under Miss Dorothy Brenner, will present a short concert of band music.

Bandit Trapped

When it comes to love, Donald Loftus, 36, above, is no piker. After being captured by police in Mishawaka, Ind., he confessed to 12 bank robberies in the middle west in the last two years. He said he had spent almost $100,000 of the loot he obtained on a long life of women. His attempt to court a new wife led to his arrest.

REGULARS AND ROOSEVELTS IN LEAD IN COUNTY

Official Count of Party Delegate Vote Completed by Board

Roosevelt instructed Democratic delegate candidates and Regular Republican delegate candidates to the two party conventions in Chicago next June carried Outagamieco, according to official returns of the county board of canvassers, who completed their work yesterday.

In the contest for district delegates, the Republican candidates polled almost a two to one vote over the two progressive candidates. In the Democratic contest the Roosevelt slate scored a decisive victory over the Callahan faction.

Winford H. Johnson of Kiel led Regular Republican candidates with 3,476 votes and Charles C. Nelson, Appleton, got 3,327 votes. Richard P. Murray, Progressive delegate, received 1,715 votes and James E. Cashman, 1,421.

The Democratic candidates favored in the county were James H. Bell, Appleton, with 3,765 votes, and John A. Kuypers, De Pere, with 2,929 votes. Henry S. Meyer, Appleton, ran third with 1,932 votes. Arthur J. Auton, got 965 votes. The latter two were Callahan followers. Mr. Callahan being a former Smith supporter.

MATE PRONOUNCED DEAD BUT WOMAN WON'T BELIEVE IT

Los Angeles, —(AP)—A woman, so certain her husband is not dead that she shows no sign of grief, waited today at an undertaking establishment for the man. John David Guleph, 71, physician and claimant to the English throne, to show signs of life.

She has ordered the body held five days by the undertaker before burial, declaring her husband is not dead, but is in a state of suspended animation.

"Why, he has been in this same condition five times before; four times while a soldier in India and a fifth time at our house here in California," she said.

Three physicians have announced Guleph dead, but Mrs. Guleph refuses to consider herself a widow.

Guleph claimed to be a son of King Edward VII of England by a morganatic marriage. In 1910, he published a book in England setting forth his claims. He was ignored by English royalty.

porting the inquiry. He was reluctant to comment.

"Just read today's papers," he told the newspapermen who crowded about him as they learned of the decision. He directed attention to stories from New York and Paris. They told of the downward movement of stocks, new gold shipments from this country to France and the campaign in that country against the American dollar.

Brookhart spoke of a "systematic bear raid" and hinted at foreign influences, specifically naming France. A lot of hints were passed out. Brookhart remarked he had in his pocket a report purporting to show an attempt to drive America off the gold standard.

New York (AP)—Surprised by the senate's decision to start its Wall-st inquiry next week, shorts took cover at the stock market opening today and many leading issues rallied $1 to $3 a share.

The scurry to buy lasted only ten minutes or so and extreme gains were roughed out in half during subsequent profit-taking, but the rally served to check a decline that had lasted for eight consecutive trading days, putting average prices just under the lows of the 1921 depression.

United States Steep jumped $2.62 to $35.25 on the first sale, then fell back more than a dollar. American Telephone, opening at $110 for 5,000 shares, reduced its raise of $3.75 by about $2. Santa Fe Railroad, after rising $3.75 to $55.75, reacted moderately. Extreme gains of $2 to $3 in American Can, Consolidated Gas, Peoples Gas, American Tobacco, "B," Westinghouse, New York Central and Public Service of New Jersey were similarly reduced, but the market then steadied. Union Pacific and Standard Oil of California sagged to new lows.

The early trading was active, featured by several blocks of 1,000 to 5,000 shares, and transactions in the first half hour approximated 500,000 shares.

ADVOCATES FORCED DOLLAR SHRINKING TO END DEPRESSION

Cleveland, —(AP)—Invisible enemy forces within the nation's economic system must be discovered before they—the causes of the depression—can be cured, Col. Leonard F. Ayres told Ohio statisticians at a banquet here last night.

Col. Ayres, one of the country's leading business analysts, and vice-president of the Cleveland Trust Co., said economists can not combat their invisible enemy, the "cycle bacillus," until they have isolated it. He recommended that each of the statisticians aid in the search.

Prof. Irving Fisher of Yale university, told the several hundred persons seated at the banquet that the present time may be said to consist of the fact that each dollar of debt has grown to be a dollar and a half.

"We are suffering from a hyper-trophied dollar when we should have been provided with a stable or fixed dollar, just as we have a fixed yardstick and a fixed kilowatt," he said.

Prof. Fisher advocated a forced shrinking of the dollar's value by a "reflationary" process. The federal government, he said, should "take the land laid by buying off the gold standard. We could do it without going off the gold standard."

John Scovill, statistician for an automobile manufacturing company, told the audience that nearly 8,000 cars were being destroyed or worn out every day.

TRAIN HITS CAR AT MANAWA CROSSING

J. D. Rouse, 79, New London, Seriously Injured in Accident

J. D. Rouse, 79, member of the Trout Farm Agency at New London, is in a serious condition at Community hospital, New London, with injuries received at 10:15 this morning when the automobile he was driving on Highway 22 was struck by an east bound Green Bay and Western passenger train at Manawa. Because it was impossible to take X-ray pictures this morning, the extent of the aged man's injuries can not be determined, attending physicians stated. He suffered several fractured ribs, however, and received severe body bruises.

Rouse was driving his car north out of Manawa on Highway 22 when the accident occurred. His machine was badly wrecked when it was dragged about 40 yards down the railroad tracks. The injured man was taken to the New London institution in an ambulance.

Will Organ Music Have Charms For Politicians?

New York, —(AP)—The "organ"ization of the Democratic and Republican conventions at Chicago this year is already in the bag.

Just why the builders of the Chicago stadium, where the conventions will be held, installed a pipe organ was never made entirely clear. The stadium was built primarily for boxing, not for hockey, not for basketball, not for football.

An organ opus, explained some of New York's cauldron students today, is poor fare for boxfighters. A heavyweight who has just been bashed on the back by a blow is in no mood for Mendelssohn. Boxfight customers, too, balk at Bach. The only music the welcome is that raucous voice from the gallery, screaming: "sock 'im wid the right."

There was little doubt in New York political circles today, however, but that both parties would take full advantage of the organ. What worried some of the master minds, however, was the scarcity of musicianship among the political leaders.

Outstanding among political figures from a musical standpoint is Charles C. Taylor, a vice-presidential candidate. "Melody" is widely heard. Republicans made no effort to conceal their delight in the advantage this seemed to give them, musically.

New York Democrats, however, declined to surrender any honors. They pointed out the popularity of the aria, "The Sidewalks of New York" in connection with the presidential candidacy of Alfred E. Smith in 1928. Nor did they overlook the fact that the Democratic Mayor, Walter T. Dill, once wore a wig and asked the pathetic question: "Will You Love Me in December as You do in May?"

It was felt by some politicians of the Times square set that each convention should adopt an official theme song. One of the more fertile minds suggested that much of the convention business would be carried on by music cues. For instance, the roll call. When it got time for Alabama to cast its votes for some thing or other, the organ would break into the tune: "When that Midnight Choo-Choo Leaves for Alabama" (Alabama, Alabama). "The other states would have 'My Maryland.'" "I Was Born in Michigan." "My Old Kentucky Home," and for Texas they could use the "Rangers Song" by Romberg with, of course, due credit to the copyright owners.

The idea, some thought, might even be carried to the point where the actual nomination could be announced musically. In the event President Hoover were renominated, the organ would break into: "Hoover There, Hoover There. Send the word, send the word, Hoover there."

The possibilities, the political observers confessed, are boundless. And after all, they pointed out, the organ is there.

HUGE DEATH TOLL IN ORIENT PLAGUE

Casualties Approach Total of Sino-Japanese War, Scientist Says

Los Angeles, —(AP)—Ravages of the dread oriental pneumonic plague in Manchuria have resulted in casualties almost comparable to those of the Sino-Japanese armed conflict, Dr. Arthur Tansome, noted English scientist, said today.

He returned here from a trip to the orient as head of a corps of nine international physicians working under auspices of the International Medical Relief expedition for plague prevention.

"We were able to stop the disease to a great extent," he said, "but in Solum, a city of 60,000 population, it killed 5,000 before we could segregate the carriers."

"The plague is transmitted to man by a Siberian fur-bearing animal about the size of our raccoon—the tatarvagan—and is carried into the populated districts of Manchuria by Chinese who contract it in Siberia. They rush home to die, according to custom, and give it to their neighbors. Anyone in a room with a patient contracts it from the exhaled breath. It means certain death—usually within two days."

He told how his corps was pressed into medical service in the fighting zone to care for both Japanese and Chinese wounded.

BILL SUPPORTING BANK DEPOSITS GAINS STRENGTH

Congressman Steagall Finds Overwhelming Demand for It Over Country

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
Washington — The long-suffering people of the United States, who howled so loudly against the proposed sales tax as to cause its defeat, may also force a federal law to guarantee deposits in banks.

"I have been amazed at the overwhelming demand for it from all parts of the country," says Congressman Henry Bascom Steagall of Alabama, chairman of the House Banking and Currency Committee. So, whereas not long ago there seemed a rather obvious apathy toward the proposal, Steagall has presented a guarantee bill of his own in addition to at least a score such measures introduced by other members of Congress and the House committee has been quietly holding hearings at which surprisingly little opposition has developed.

Senate May Kill It
It seems probable that the committee will report out a bill which, in view of the recent temper of the House, is likely to pass. Whether it could get through the Senate and escape a presidential veto would depend on the strength of opposition there.

Most bankers are believed to oppose deposit insurance, although Steagall says many bankers in small and medium-sized cities are at last favoring it. One of the arguments flung at the scheme is that the guarantee law in Nebraska, the last state in which one operated, has collapsed. But Nebraska's progressive Democrat, Congressmen Edgar Howard, cites what he calls the success of the Nebraska law to prove how well such a system can work if properly managed and safeguarded.

"Worked for 17 Years"
"For 17 years," Howard says, "the bank guaranty law of Nebraska worked so perfectly that no depositor in a Nebraska state bank lost a dollar during that period."

"A state administration criminalized that good law until the people lost faith in it. But for 17 successful years it remained free from the taint of the touch of those in official power who finally killed it."

"I hope that soon all national banks will be made so safe and secure by our action that their depositors will be as free from fear as were the depositors of our state during those 17 years."

Both Howard and Ashton C. Shallenberger, state governor in the early days of the Nebraska law, have offered bills modeled on the Nebraska plan. Howard says his bill has the merit of simplicity. It would put the system in the hands of the comptroller of currency, building up a guarantee fund through compulsory contribution of one-half of one per cent of each national bank's average daily deposits for the first two years and of one-tenth of one per cent annually thereafter.

Would Endorse Hoarding
Steagall's bill would both require strengthening of individual national banks and establish a Federal Liquidating Board and a fund created by contributions from Federal Reserve Bank surpluses.

Hoarding would be ended by such a law, say, and also the practice of many small town depositors who transfer their funds to metropolitan centers in the hope of greater safety.

What a Banker Says
Vice President A. P. Fierston of the East Tennessee Bank in Knoxville appeared before Steagall's committee and endorsed the proposal. He said banks shouldn't be permitted to make huge dividends and earnings with which to speculate, but should be constantly strengthened for the protection of the depositors whose money they use to make profits.

"A deposit guarantee backed by the government would stop hoarding and end it forever," Fierston says. Members of the committee also point out that past state guaranty laws have been usually operative in states where the money situation depended on a one-crop system, sometimes creating heavy strain.

WARN FARMERS ABOUT "BLEEDING" VINES

Warning that grape vines will "bleed" if pruned too late in the spring has been issued by Gustav E. Sell, county agricultural agent. Although this bleeding is harmful there is no danger of the vine bleeding to death, Mr. Sell says.

The proper time to prune grapevines is in the early spring after danger of very low temperatures has passed and before the buds begin to swell. If pruned later when the weather is warm and buds are beginning to grow, the vine will lose sap at the place of pruning. The loss of the plant food in the sap retards the growth of the vine.

REGENTS MAY VOTE ON ATHLETIC BOARD

New Organization Would Replace Present Athletic Council

Madison — (P.) — Regent Dan Grady's proposal to wipe out the present athletic council at the University of Wisconsin and create a new body to be known as the "athletic board" stands a good chance of coming to a vote at the next meeting of the board of Regents April 27.

Mr. Grady introduced a resolution for the change in the athletic governing body late in January but action on it was postponed at the request of Pres. Glenn Frank and several regents. At that time the present athletic council was being severely criticized for its failure to get a new football coach.

The present council has three alumni representatives, one undergraduate and six faculty members, all of whom are appointed by the university president. Regent Grady proposes a board of seven members, one of whom would be an alumnus, one the chairman of the regents committee on physical education, one an undergraduate and four faculty members. With the exception of the regent, all would be appointed by the president.

The legislative investigation of the athletic department several months ago, as well as persistent rumors, indicated that the alumni and undergraduate students usually were lined up against the faculty members on controversial questions. Whether Regent Grady had this in mind in creating a new board of whether a yearly change in personnel was what he desired is not known. His resolution asks that members of the board with the exception of the regent, hold office for one year.

The regent's term on the athletic board would expire when his regular term ends.

At various times in the past the alumni of the university have indicated that they want a greater representation on the council. However, the faculty always has been supreme in the control of athletics at the university and recent developments indicate that it intends to retain control. It is unlikely that a faculty majority on the athletic council will be destroyed.

Mr. Grady's inclusion of a regent on the proposed athletic board apparently confirms the report that the board of regents want to take a more direct stand in the control of athletic policies. After the council had spent several weeks arguing about Coach Glenn Thurston's successor, the board of regents stepped in and actually took charge of the matter, which was thereafter concluded in short order with the selection of Dr. Clarence Spears.

Favors Earlier Season For Pike And Muskies

BY BERT CLAFFIN
It is unfortunate that we cannot get the conservation commission to see the advantage in opening the fishing season for wall-eyed pike, muskies, northern pike and pickerel on May 1 instead of May 15, as it now is. There are just as many of these fish now as there were then, and they are just as good to eat now as they were then. The only reason for the delay is the law. The law is the law, and it must be, and is respected, just as is the prohibition law. The conservation commission is the one who is responsible for the law, and it is impossible for those who love it to get a drink.

Claffin
There is no saving of their number as the law now stands.

They are through spawning before May 1, hence there can be no objection to catching them from that date on, and the anglers would get a better break in the favorite sport.

However, one of the chief reasons for advocating earlier opening of the season is that it would afford anglers protection for our trout trout. The trout season for catching them begins May 1. The anglers have been for months to gratify their wish to catch trout, and the trout are now being caught with their hands. The first day, so that they can be caught.

If the season for catching pike and muskies were open with that for the trout many anglers would go after the former, and the latter would be saved to a great extent. As it is, our trout are fast declining, and the only remedy steps taken are the much buzzed about propagation and the useless seven inch size limit. The latter restriction, to my thinking is a very unfortunate one. Instead of tending to increase the trout population, it simply forces the anglers to keep on killing the undersized fish, until they catch the big spawners.

However, the law is the law, and it must be, and is respected, just as is the prohibition law. The conservation commission is the one who is responsible for the law, and it is impossible for those who love it to get a drink.

Ivy Peshtigo River
By the way, I was asked the other day by a young angler to tell him what I considered good walleyed pike waters. He had visited several last season with very poor luck. I told him that he would not have to drive hundreds of miles to find waters that harbor walleyes. The Peshtigo River, near Twin Bridge, is a good place. I hope that on what I have written myself. One day last season I caught five, the largest of which weighed over five pounds, two of them over four and two just over three pounds.

I caught these fine fish out near Twin Bridge in very deep water, and I used a small spinner with a pork rind. Most of the fishing for these fish is done in the shallow waters of the river. I was told when I caught them that the pike were not as good as they were not in the shallow waters, but so long as they were in the river, I could get them. I just wonder where they were when I was using the right bait.

TRAFFIC TAGS AND BANK HOLDUPS

One of the odd angles of the recent $200,000 Minneapolis bank holdup illustrates the tangled problem which this complicated age has tossed in the laps of the police.

Armed heavily enough to resemble a World War trench raiding squad, the bandits boldly marched into a bank in a busy section of the city, in broad daylight, held up the 24 people who were in the bank, and got away with their loot unmolested.

Meanwhile, less than a block away, two policemen who might have done something to stop them were peacefully putting traffic tickets on improperly parked automobiles, in blissful ignorance of the holdup.

This does not mean that the policemen were asleep. They were doing precisely what they had been paid to do. Guardians of law and order, they were devoting themselves to the dreary, never-ending job of seeing to it that a big city's traffic didn't tie itself into hard knots.

As a result, the bandits who went out to commit an insolently bold robbery got away unmolested.

That is the sort of thing the police in every city are up against nowadays. A police department exists primarily to protect the lives and property of the citizens. Keeping down crime is its first job. If it fails in that, it fails to justify its existence.

But we have permitted our city civilization to grow so complicated that the police often find the war on crime a relatively minor part of their schedule.

They have traffic to superintend—a man's sized job in itself. They have a host of minor city ordinances to enforce. They must also keep down bootlegging, check up on gamblers, see to it that street peddlers have licenses, cast an occasional eye at theatrical performances, look for missing persons, and so on. They are too busy with their incidental jobs to give the war on crime the attention that it must have.

A NEW LINOTYPE OPERATOR

The photo-electric cell, more commonly called the electric eye, continues to pile up evidence that its vision, though wholly mechanical, seems to see many things that we had come to believe only the human eye and mind could photograph and at the same time, understand.

It develops that this little device which will catch the faintest ray of light and put it to work, has become a threatened competitor of the nimble and skillful human hands that now transform the editor's copy into the newspaper type that now begs your indulgence.

Automatic typesetting—the operation of a linotype machine direct from copy without human effort—has been demonstrated as a practicality. A master copy from a special typewriter is placed under the gaze of a thin beam of light, the electric eye goes to work and the type and slugs of the linotype machine fall into orderly array, line by line, and with never an "e" for an "a."

Are linotype operators and proofreaders destined to become new victims in the warfare continuously going on between man and machine? Is this electric eye destined to follow the reporter himself about and transcribe his very thoughts into news served hot at the breakfast table? Heaven forbid!

If what this new invention portends is true, even editors may be relieved of their mental strain. By merely letting a light shine upon their countenance, machinery will be set in motion and out will pop the latest in logical and sound thought on the topics of the day.

STUDENTS AND THE MINE WAR

It is hard to see why anyone has a right to jeer at those college students who tried to get a first-hand look at conditions in the Harlan county coal fields of Kentucky.

To be sure, the sight of eager youth in a chartered bus, rushing into an area where outside investigators are about as welcome as royalists in Russia, has its ludicrous angles. But there is nothing especially funny about the way in which the students were turned back, or about the motives that led them to go to Kentucky in the first place.

Young people go to college to be educated. That, at any rate, is the theory; and it can safely be assumed that these youngsters weren't of the type that goes to college solely to get a social polish.

Getting an education involves many things. Among them, it involves getting a comprehensive and accurate view of the civilization in which the scholar lives. Harlan county, much as we might be tempted to regret it, is a part of American civilization.

What could be more fitting, then, than that college students should go there to find out for themselves what all the shooting is about?

When Harlan county's prosecutor told the students that they "have no interest whatever" in the things that are happening in the coal field, he simply did not know what he was talking about. All Americans have an interest in them. A college student who didn't care to find out about them, when the opportunity offered, would do well to leave college and go home to live off his father a bit longer.

This nation is in no danger from students who charter busses and go to scenes of industrial warfare to find out what is happening. The really dangerous students are the ones who don't care; the ones in whose eyes the junior prom and the ins and outs of campus politics are the only truly important things. The boys and girls who tried to go to Harlan county, whatever else they may have done, at least proved that they know what they are in college for.

BANK HOLDING COMPANIES

One of the provisions of the Glass banking bill now before congress compels bank holding companies to maintain reserve assets, other than bank stock, to protect and make good their double liability as bank stockholders.

The President of the First Bank Stock Corporation, operating group banks in Minnesota and western states, declared before the senate committee that "enactment of this section as written would completely put us out of business or at least force us out of the federal reserve system, which would probably amount to the same thing. We are physically unable to comply with these regulations."

Nothing could more clearly demonstrate the necessity of the very regulations under discussion.

A bank holding corporation is organized for the purpose of buying bank stocks. Enough money is paid in to purchase the stocks. Thereupon the holding company owns the bank stock. But unless that holding company has other valuable assets equivalent in amount to the par value of the bank stocks which it has purchased, the provision of the national banking act creating a double liability upon the part of stockholders, and which is put there solely for the protection of depositors, is entirely frustrated.

It is no answer to this situation to declare that sometimes individuals, called upon for their double liability, are unable to pay it. That is the exception and not the rule. Creation of a holding corporation without sufficient assets, makes for certain elimination of this liability. Unless the Glass proposal is enforced we are, in effect, permitting a weakening of the entire banking structure of the country.

Nor is it any answer to this situation that it will compel the liquidation of holding companies. If holding companies cannot make banking at least as safe as it is in their absence, what possible purpose do they serve? And if the Glass Act compels the liquidation of the holding companies and the transfer of their bank stocks into the hands of individuals it will thereby make the double liability more likely collectible than it will be when the holding companies hold nothing but bank stocks. Such holding companies only insure themselves all the advantages inherent in bank control and operation without assuming the responsibility that must accompany the venture.

Then came to mind the fact that one of the boys gave us some homework to do. Tsk, tsk. A fellow can't even get out of working on this darned sheet even when he gets three hundred miles away from it.

Personal Health Talks
BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

THE COLDS OF ST. KILDA

The inhabitants of St. Kilda, says an editorial writer in the Atlanta Constitution, believed that strangers landing on the island caused the colds which invariably followed the arrival of a ship. Neither Dr. Johnson nor Boswell could ferret out the reason for the predicament in which St. Kildians found themselves, a situation so serious that at one time they thought of interdicting the landing of strangers. Fortunately, shortly after Boswell recorded the coincidence of ships and colds, an English pastor solved the mystery. Here is his explanation:

The cause is a natural one. The situation of St. Kilda, a remote northeast wind necessary before a stranger can land. The wind, not the stranger, occasions an epidemic cold.

Now wouldn't that please some of those old fogies who hold jobs as health commissioners around this wiscare county? The mystery of the thing to my mind, is that Dr. Johnson muffed it. I am not at all astonished that a pastor, and especially an English one, hopped right in where Johnson feared to tread, and gave the commoners the rights of it.

Whatever "colds" were in those days.

Today everybody knows what a "cold" or "the common cold" is, yet nobody with any professional standing has the courage to define it.

In spite of everything, though, I think we have advanced intellectually since Dr. Johnson's day, for even the health commissioners who issue bulletins about the cause and prevention of "colds" now concede that when the disease is epidemic it is due to infection from some one else who has it, be he friend or stranger. The old timers no longer have the temerity to tell the dumb public that northeast winds cause epidemics. That line of buncombe passed into history along with the good old "shotgun quarantine" against yellow fever.

If the pastor who solved the mystery of the colds of St. Kilda, said today, "what a good customer he would be for the various cough drops, gargles, lozenges, antiseptics and grip cures that catch the sucker by handing him a picture of the victim in the very act of contracting bad cold in a downpour of rain or a swirl of snow. This line seems to knock over the heavy trade as well as ever, at least in the big population centers.

Our friend (M. A. H.) who sent the clipping about the colds of St. Kilda complains that he has a cold. He is so full that he can't find the one he wants, and asks if I haven't a book of these writings. I know there are some terrible books perpetrated nowadays, and there are times when I feel pretty vindictive. But I hope I shall never go to that extreme. Why not arrange your clippings in a file, with your own index of subjects?

The Tynymites

THE candleman said, "I've a bunch one of the Tynies in this bunch could also tell a story every bit as good as mine."

"Who's going to try it just to please the candleman? Now, I won't tease, but if you entertain me, I will think that it fine."

"I'll try my luck," brave Scoury said. Another shouted, "Go ahead! But talk real low, or you will wake a lazy, sleepy head."

"Just look at Duncy. He's asleep. It seems that he can never keep his eyelids up at nighttime. Say, let's tuck him into bed."

So, into bed they put the lad. No doubt was Duncy felt real glad. Then Scoury said, "My story is about a little cat."

"It used to chase its tail all day. The cat, though, always got away." Then Copsy said, "My goodness, how do you account for that?"

"Oh, you are dumb as you can be," laughed Scoury. "Can't you plainly see that when the cat's head turned around, the tail would also turn?"

"At times you're really smart, I know, but other times your brain works slow. It only goes to prove that there is much you're still to learn."

"Twas rather late, so every one agreed to end the evening's fun. They promptly scrambled into bed and slept till break of day.

Right after breakfast Windy said, "I guess we'd best move on ahead. We hope to call on you again when we're around this way."

"All right," replied the candleman, "and here's a present that you can have lots of fun with later on. Just one more thing I'll say: 'It is a lot which body's worth some things I'm sure will make you grin. Don't open it until you are about a mile away.'"

Seen And Heard In New York

By WILLIAM GAINES

New York—Louis Michel Elshemius, once wealthy, has spent a fortune publishing pamphlets proclaiming himself a genius of the brush.

Now, it appears, his investment is bringing returns. He may never live to retrieve all of his money, but, he frankly admits, what he sought to purchase was recognition.

It was a French artist who "discovered" Elshemius after many years of neglect by the public.

Marcus Duschamps, visiting this country in 1917, attended the independent exhibition. Duschamps singled out Elshemius as the only "great" artist represented.

Since then Henri Matisse and other renowned artists have sustained Duschamps' judgment.

Elshemius tells us he is "completely American," he points out that one critic described him as "helplessly American."

He is one of ten children in an old New Jersey Dutch family, and is the descendant of many well known judges, clerics and soldiers of early colonial history.

He was educated at Cornell university and at European schools, and has traveled over the world, painting romantic pictures of the things he has seen.

Today he is a little old man with baggy trousers, long white beard and bright, dark eyes.

And his eyes glitter with a fierce light when he tells you that he was turned away from one American exhibition after another because his paintings "were not fashioned after the European art, which has been so popular."

A legend grew up that this man who alone believes in his art was mad. He was laughed at for years. But Elshemius himself had the saving grace of humor. He laughed, too, and to gain recognition he did things which made people say he was publicity crazy.

Now he has got what he wanted. His work may not be what you or I would fancy—or what we would like to think of as representative American art.

But he has fought out the battle with such zeal that Americans can be glad to claim him for his spunk, if nothing else.

On Training Bugs

Perhaps you didn't know it before, and I can't say that I did, either, but the flea is not the only one of our charming little bugs that can be trained for circus stunts.

Roy Heckler, one of the younger professors at the West Forty-second Street Flea circus, tells me that next to the flea the best bug for stunts is the cricket. The Chinese, he says, have been making a circus horse out of the cricket for centuries.

The cricket, it seems, is a highly pugnacious bug, and a couple of 'em in a miniature arena can be made to claw each other to pieces.

The Chinese have gone so far as to devise spurs, which they fit upon the legs of their battling crickets. And the Chinese, says Prof. Heckler, bet on the outcome.

Even roaches, Prof. Dr. Heckler informs me, can be trained to a certain extent.

On April 9, 1918, German troops launched their second offensive, against British and Portuguese positions in the Armenian sector, after heavy artillery preparation.

Several villages were taken and the British forces were pushed back by overwhelming numbers of enemy soldiers. At several points, German regiments reached the Lys river.

The objective of the drive was to cripple the British forces still further and to weaken other sections of the front by taking or threatening the channel ports.

French reserves were held in readiness for use on this front if they should be needed.

British Lord George England asked the British Parliament to approve a man-power bill making every citizen between 15 and 59 eligible for the draft.

He urged immediate passage of such a measure, admitting that the situation in France was acute.

CULBERTSON on CONTRACT

by Ely Culbertson
World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

DRAWING CORRECT INFERENCES

Each step in the bidding of a hand at Contract Bridge should be constructive. Every bid should convey some additional information, either affirmative or negative. It is a corollary of this principle that a player at Contract should not expect his partner to do something that he can do himself.

A very fine example of the drawing of correct inferences and the reaching of the correct final bid was given in a recent team-of-four match between The Bridge World team and the team captained by Mr. P. H. Hal Sims on the board below:

North-Dealer.

1—Two notrump on this hand would show merely a minimum bid. Three notrump shows a very strong hand and is a mild Slam try.

2—A very beautiful bid, based on knowledge that his partner holds 41 honor-tricks without valuable distribution. The long, solid diamond suit, with the outside King of clubs and singleton spades, practically assures Mr. von Zedwitz that the combined hands will produce six-odd.

In the other room, where the positions of the players were reversed, the same final contract was reached, but North only bid five diamonds on the third round of bidding, leaving it to his partner to bid six. As a matter of fact, this bidding required the stretching of South's hand to the utmost in order to justify bidding the Slam.

Obviously, on the bidding, the Slam would appear to rest upon

A good Contract player should not ask his partner to make a bid that is justified by his own holding.

BY ANGELO PATRI

Many of our difficulties with children arise from fatigue. The cross child is usually a tired child. All children are on fire with energy. A healthy little three year old can tire any adult in an hour and still be fresh as a daisy. But there comes a time when he tires. To the child it comes without warning. He does not think, "I'm getting a bit tired. My eyes don't work as well as they might. My legs are shaky. My head feels queer. I'll lie down and keep still for a while and I'll soon be all right." Not at all. He has no thought about the matter. All of a sudden, and it seems to you, he just goes into a tantrum, opens his head and yells like a savage. He has just discovered that he is tired.

What are we to do about it? Once he has reached that stage all we can do is to soothe and quiet him as best we can and get him to bed. Undress him and lay him on his bed. Tell him to rest. If necessary give him his Teddy bear, or her doll, but don't stay with him, and don't talk too much. Of course you won't storm and scold and say, "You won't tire an over-tired child if you could help it. Give him a drink but don't feed him until the first weariness is past.

Guard against this fatigue in the daily schedule. When you see a child running wildly about the yard, screaming in excitement, scarcely seeing where he is going and going like mad, it is time to slow him down. Go out and let him see you. When he has paused for an instant, go to him, don't call him to you, and speak softly to him. Ask him if he wouldn't like a drink of water. Children are always thirsty. Get his attention in some way, and when his excitement has settled a bit, direct him to some quieter occupation. Don't let a child go on to the breaking point.

After lunch he is to rest a time. If he refuses to sleep say nothing about it. Let him lie in quiet with his picture book or his toy, and rest. If he will not sleep, let him get over-tired early in the afternoon and it will save him an experience of indigestion. When he is rested he can be washed and dressed for the playground again.

When children are sleeping the house must be quiet. Not the tip-toe sort of quiet, but ordinary stillness. The radio should be silent. No thumping and hammering, no shouting and slamming should go on while a child sleeps. He hears while he sleeps although he makes no sign. Even sound detracts from his rest. A sleeping child is not always resting well. If the house is quiet he has a better chance.

The light should be subdued. The child's eyes register light and he does not get the best out of his sleep when he has the light full on his face, or on his bed. Over and over again one sees babies sleeping in their prams with the sun shining full in their faces. That is poor management and quite unbecoming as all prams have hoods to save the children just such experiences. A shaded room is best.

Children need fresh air. They tire very soon in ill-ventilated rooms. Many a temper tantrum could be avoided by keeping the fresh air supply up to the limit. Prevention is better than cure in this field as well as in others. Fatigue checks a child's growth. Sufficient rest promotes it.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, inclosing stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

WE WOMEN

By Virginia Vane

TRUE SYMPATHY FOR THE POOR MISUNDERSTOOD MALE

Dear Virginia Vane: I don't want you to tell me the same old thing—namely that I shouldn't be going around with a married man at all. I want you to listen to his side of the story. He and his wife aren't happy together. She isn't a good companion to him and she quarrels with him all the time about things which are not his fault. He did love her very much until she kissed his love. I feel so sorry for him that when he says he wants to take me out, I just have to accept. How can it be wrong to help someone who needs sympathy so badly? He and I both know we cannot marry and that would be against his religion and mine. But I don't want to turn him down and have him broken-hearted. He can't be happy with his wife and why shouldn't I bring a little happiness into his life?

PEGGY.

The point is, Peggy, that all the time you're filling his life with sunshine, you're piling up a lot of misery for him in the years to come. You may think you're a beautiful golden-hearted angel to be so kind to a poor misunderstood husband, but if you were truly anxious to help him toward some future peace and tranquility you'd cut him out of your life right now.

You have admitted that he can't possibly marry you. Therefore the assumption is that somehow or other he's got to learn to get along with his wife. And if he's going to make any effort to find his spouse bearable, you'll only be a hindrance. Left to himself, without your tender sympathy and understanding, he might learn to compromise—to give in—so that he and his better half might make a go of things after all.

Other men have misunderstood, unsympathetic wives you know and a whole lot of their manage to be happy in the end with these mis-matched marriages. If they're left severely alone by attractive young women with sympathetic natures, without wishing to appear hard-hearted, I would lay a small bet that your inamorata was not any more misunderstood, or unjustly treated than ninety-nine per cent of the men in the world believe themselves to be.

He may be simply going through that difficult period of matrimony when the other half of the contract begins to look unattractive and sounds constantly fault-finding. But if he hadn't happened on you the chances are he would have adjusted himself and by now might be a normally happy and contented husband.

You've helped him to realize how mistreated he is. And so long as you remain in the picture, his discontent with his home life will grow. If you remove yourself utterly from his life, you'll give him a chance to face facts—to realize just where he stands—and that he must make the best of the domestic situation. And my experience has taught me that he'll settle down into an easy humdrum sort of hardness which would plague you a good deal if you learned about it.

So, Peggy, if you're really just running around with this poor male because you feel sorry for him, you're on the wrong track. Give him a break if you're truly sympathetic. Make it easier for him to take peace at home, by removing your charms to a safe distance where they will not serve to remind him that his matrimonial partner isn't all he expected her to be.

MISS V. S.: No, it wasn't your place to write. I believe that if the boy has to work so hard, he has no time for social pleasures right now, but the situation won't always be like that. In the meantime go on being friendly with him but don't go in for correspondence again. It really won't do you any good and it may scare off the hapful even entirely.

MY NEIGHBOR Says —

Never leave fish, unless salted soaking in water. Too much soaking destroys the flavor and makes the fish flabby.

Do not put too much wax on floors. A little wax and plenty of polishing makes a better-looking floor.

Pasture made with too much water is tough and hard. Use only enough water to hold the ingredients together, mix quickly, roll and handle as little as possible.

When washing greasy dishes add a few drops of ammonia to the water. The work will be more quickly and thoroughly done.

THE STORY OF SUE

By Margery Hale

SUE stood quietly listening to Sally Bradley's words. Ruth's head was high. Her cheeks burned with mad color. But she said nothing.

"You're nothing but an ingrate! You're cruel, selfish, unkind, greedy, sponging, horrid...." On and on the words rang. They fell like sharp pebbles. Feathers that bruised but couldn't cut the flesh because they weren't strong enough. "You wore an evening dress of mine and spoiled it! You still owe me one...."

"I didn't spoil it, Sally. You have forgotten. And I had bought it for you with my own money. I couldn't afford one for myself. But if you will turn a minute...."

Ruth turned and went up the stairs. Sally sat down again. She wondered why she felt so sure. Surely she wasn't going to accept payment for the dress. She couldn't do that. Besides Ruth didn't have enough money to make any financial contributions to anyone, just now.

When Ruth came down the stairs again she was carrying something soft and shining and flimsy over her arm. She held it up. It was one of the evening frocks that Nancy Becker had given her. A warm rose in chiffon velvet, backless, with the briefest of glittering straps across the shoulders.

"Take this," Ruth told Sally. "That clears the score, doesn't it? There aren't any more debts?"

"But where did you get it?" Sally asked.

"Does that matter?" Ruth replied. "You will look lovely in it."

Sally wanted the frock. Her eyes were greedy. She was visualizing herself in it. Pride had made her turn away from it, but in the face of the rose loveliness she was powerless.

"It does even up things, doesn't it?" she asked. She reached out one hand, touched the silken, velvety softness of the material. "It would help to atone for lots of things."

Ruth couldn't carry on the role much longer. Her last defense was nearly down. She knew that.

"Do you want to try the dress on, Sally?" Sue asked. "Go on up stairs Ruth. I'll see if it fits."

"I'll take it home with me," Sally said. "Do you mind?" She opened the door. Then she came back again. "Thank you for your promptness, Ruth," she called after the figure of the other girl. Ruth turned and smiled. A frozen sort of smile. One that didn't want to stay in place. Then she went upstairs. The door closed after Sally.

Sue followed Ruth. She found her standing in front of the mirror. "Life's funny, isn't it?" she said. "I wanted to wear that dress the next time I'm any place where Joe Raynor is. I had a pink dress once. Nothing as expensive as that, of course. Still, it was rather nice. I wore it one night when we had an idea that the moon was a painted ball for us to bounce, and we left a party and went walking down along a pier. It was dark and funny.... But Sally might as well have in chiffon velvet, backless, with the briefest of glittering straps across the shoulders."

CHOOSE YOUR COIFFURE TO SUIT YOUR TYPE

BY ALICIA HART

There has been much talk of wigs with lacquered curls for spring coiffures.

Whether or not you ever take to one of these wigs, they have had a tremendous influence on the vogue.

Well arranged curls that stay in place are the style of the moment. If you are one of those fly-away on, Sally?" Sue asked. "Go on up stairs Ruth. I'll see if it fits."

pixies, with curls blowing all over your head as if you had done them with an egg beater, don't be too self-satisfied. The vogue has moved on and left you behind, whether you know it or not.

I think it is a mistake for every woman to conform absolutely to a given popular coiffure. There isn't one that is becoming to everybody. But there usually is some underlying current of style that expresses itself this way or that and whether you conform perfectly or not, it is a good thing to know what it is all about.

"Sculptured heads" is what it is all about this spring. You know how exquisitely in place the curls stay on a lovely statue!

Most women have too much hair to wear tightly curled coiffures. There is no law against having your hair thinned a little, however.

For an unusual coiffure, part your hair either in the center or at one side, and continue the part from the forehead to the nape of the neck. Have your hair wave gently and curl all the ends, clear down to the nape of your neck. This is a charming coiffure for new spring chignon evening dresses—a dainty, alluring coiffure. Incidentally, it is an exceedingly young one.

A second new coiffure, especially good for black or dark brown hair that is not curly, consists of a dainty fringe of bangs just across the center of the forehead, no farther out than the outer end of the eyebrows. Part your hair at both sides of your head, where your bangs end.

CULBERTSON on CONTRACT

by Ely Culbertson
World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

DRAWING CORRECT INFERENCES

Each step in the bidding of a hand at Contract Bridge should be constructive. Every bid should convey some additional information, either affirmative or negative. It is a corollary of this principle that a player at Contract should not expect his partner to do something that he can do himself.

A very fine example of the drawing of correct inferences and the reaching of the correct final bid was given in the recent team-of-four match between The Bridge World team and the team captained by Mr. P. H. Hal Sims on the board below:

North—Dealer. Neither side vulnerable.

Mr. von Zedwitz

H 10 9 8 7 6

The Bidding:
(figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

North East South West
Pass Pass 1X 1A
2C Pass 3NT(1) Pass
6D(2) Pass Pass Pass

1—Two notrump on this hand would show merely a minimum bid. Three notrump shows a very strong hand and is a mild slam try.

2—A very beautiful bid based on knowledge that his partner holds 12 honor-tricks without valuable distribution. The long, solid diamond suit, with the outside King of clubs and singleton spade, practically assures Mr. von Zedwitz that the combined hands will produce six-odd.

In the other room, where the positions of the players were reversed, the same final contract was reached, but North only bid five diamonds on the third round of bidding, leaving it to his partner to bid six. As a matter of fact, this bidding required the stretching of South's hand to the utmost in order to justify bidding the slam.

Obviously, on the bidding, the slam would appear to rest upon

TODAY'S POINTER

A good Contract player should not ask his partner to make a bid that is justified by his own holding.

Who's News Today

BY LEMUEL F. PARTON
Copyright, 1932, by Cons. Press
New York—President Hoover appointed J. Clawson Rupp director of the bureau of the budget on June 21, 1929. Today, as the house economy committee asks the president for cooperation, Mr. Rupp is his head cooperator and amputator.

Mr. Rupp, who used to be an engineer, himself worked in navy with Mr. Hoover. He has shown that he can be hard on hearing on occasion and while the country is fidgeting, he just goes on budgeting. He never ventures near the footlights, working off-stage mostly, but just now he has a part considerably more than a walk-on, as the Washington drama moves to its economy climax. He has "the papers" which may save the old farm.

General "Hill and Maria" Dawes and General Herbert M. Lord, his predecessors, publicized the office considerably, saving paper clips and re-converting pencil shavings, and so on, but whatever he may be, Mr. Rupp is no space-grubber. However, behind his carefully budgeted mustache and his big double spectacles there are the ingredients of a colorful public figure.

In the war, he was a captain of engineers, later a major and then a lieutenant-colonel. The French gave him the Legion of Honor and congress gave him the D. S. M. He was in General Dawes' outfit, and the general made him a member of the board of allied supply and later put him in the budget bureau. He was born in Upland, Pa., in 1888 and was graduated from the engineering school of the University of Pennsylvania. Before the war, he was an expert in construction and testing work.

Just now, there is no man in closer contact with Mr. Hoover. He works quietly. There's never a whoop from Mr. Rupp, the noiseless budgeteer, as the old adding machine balled has it.

At 375 Ridgewood, Glen Ridge, N. J., there lived an aged suburban, with his seven children, a Forsythia hedge, an alreidre, a radio, a flivver, a pressed brick fireplace, a quince tree and a five-foot shelf of books. It's a violent wrench to the imagination, but he was that very same General Leonidas Plaza, twice exiled president of Ecuador, who is back in Guayaquil today, as two-tailed navy minnies in protest against his return, rebels capture an oil tanker and mobs fight the police. Glen Ridge was never like this.

The general was president of Ecuador from 1901 to 1905. He was then made minister to the United States. While he was in Washington, the Ecuador government was overthrown and he was invited not to come home. He stayed in New York until 1912, returned and became president again, was ousted and returned, rebels capture an oil tanker and mobs fight the police. Glen Ridge was never like this.

Tests Show Suggested Cage Rules Slow Game

SOUTH BEND, IND. (AP)—A series of trials of the new rule designed to cure "stalling" in basketball has convinced Coach George Keegan of Notre Dame that the proposed measure will be more beneficial to the game than beneficial.

The rule, endorsed at the recent meeting of the National Basketball Coaches' association, calls for a line to be drawn across the middle of the playing floor over which the offensive team must advance the ball within ten seconds of the time they take possession or in talk court or lose the ball out of bounds to the defensive team.

Four exhibition games were played on the Notre Dame court to test out the proposed rule. After the experiments, Coach Keegan, regarded as one of the "Big Ten" of the nation's hardwood coaches, drew up the following conclusions:

1. The rule is strictly in favor of the defense whereas it was devised to speed up the offense.
2. Play is jammed into a 45-foot area, making it impossible to use the back court to maneuver the offense out of position.
3. Scoring will be decreased to a minimum.
4. The number of head balls will increase 20 per cent.
5. An offensive team cannot organize its attack until one of its Chief objection to this suggestion is a meeting of the rules revision committee yesterday was that it was a "stalling" rule. The plan on the team of the ball. Some members of the sub-committee thought that was a task for the defending team.

Nell ran wild in the second half and the game assumed runaway aspects.

Bull Dogs Take Lead
The title game saw Johnson getting the first points with Westphal following with two pretty baskets. The Points got a long shot and a free throw for their scoring in the first quarter. The Bulls, played Ranner and counted a basket in the second quarter. One Point, Charlesworth added a foul for the Bull Dogs, and the leaders, on two baskets and a free throw by Weronke, managed to tie the score 10-10.

Stevens Point pulled into the lead at the half when Charlesworth's long shot and a free throw, Lard and Johnson pulled the Bulls Dogs into the lead again with side shots at the basket. Bulls were awarded each team when the boys went primitive and resorted to fists. Both teams courted from the foul line. The end of the third quarter the home team was leading 20-18.

In the fourth quarter the Bull Dogs counted a basket in the Coleman and Lard Westphal and Johnson each making a basket and the latter counted two points from the foul line. The lineups of the teams were as follows:

On the other hand the Phillips were one vote for first place and one vote for third. Brooklyn pulled one vote for second place as did Cincinnati. One writer thought the Pirates would finish as high as third.

The voting was close for the last four positions in the American league but none of the four trailers, Detroit, St. Louis, Boston or Chicago, received votes for any position higher than fourth.

CARPENTER PLANS FOR RING COMEBACK

NEW YORK (AP)—The name of Georges Carpentier has been added to the list of veteran boxers who plan to try the "comeback" feat.

The French heavyweight who was knocked out by Jack Dempsey in the famous battle of Boyle's Thirty Acres in Jersey City eleven years ago started his campaign to return to the ring to the accompaniment of cameras and microphones at a local gymnasium yesterday. Carpentier plans two months of training and then two or three trial bouts in Europe.

"If I'm satisfied with my condition then," he said, "I shall return to this country, ready to meet any man in the world."

BIG TEN BASEBALL SEASON OPENS TODAY

Bloomington, Ind. (AP)—The Big Ten baseball championship campaign opens here today with the Indiana Northwestern game. Both have been successful in their training camps. The Hoosiers winning two engagements and the Wildcats their first this week. Other Big Ten teams begin their drives next week.

Fort Wayne, Ind.—Nick Ellenwood, Fort Wayne, knocked out Peter Lens, Cincinnati (10).

would not have asked him to come if it had been satisfied with Decker. Any time St. Louis loses the combination of Gelfert and Franch the team will no longer hold its place in the top on the right. The place will be on the left and back.

Franch makes St. Louis active just as Criss will make or unmake the New York Giants.

What did Pittsburgh get in the training camp season?
George Gelfert, the new manager. Otherwise Pittsburgh is quite the same team that they had to defeat last year. It is not at second base, but it has lost 1921 and Gibson is satisfied to go on with what was the best player in the league for the season.

It is Gelfert on whom the team is counting. He is a double play man and will keep Pittsburgh the team that was promising last year, as it does this, but everything broke up last year. The Pirates in 1931 and 1932 were a lot of double plays.

GIRL CLAIMS SHE IS DAUGHTER OF JEANNE EAGELS

Young Stage Aspirant Ready To Take Up Challenge "from Grave"

BY GILBERT SWAN
New York—An obscure showgirl of 17, with raven black hair and moody Gaelic features, walked into the offices of a Broadway theatrical agency looking for a job—and walked out with a challenge from beyond the grave. Today she is preparing to take up that challenge.

For in the course of an interview with the agent she had bared a strange secret. She had said that her stage name of Dea Lloyd had been assumed; that she was actually Julie Eagles, and that her mother was Jeanne Eagles, whose brilliant stage career ended so tragically a few years before.

Fully aware now of the confusion her statement has caused, since the existence of such a daughter had never been known to the world, Julie says that, nevertheless, she is making a "challenge" to the world. She feels she is now old enough to "carry on," old enough to face the world as her mother's daughter and to learn how much in her mother she possesses.

Brings Out Story
In a few days she will play in studying the role she will play in her first picture, "For Hire," the work of one Irving Franklyn. She is to be introduced as Sadie Thompson in "Rain," the part which brought international fame to Jeanne Eagles.

She talked about her plans and her past as she sat in one of those typical side rooms of a Broadway agency, where the faces of hundreds of stars stare down out of their frames. Thus with Chamberlain Brown, the agent, when her eye had fallen on a large and lovely portrait of Jeanne Eagles.

"That is my mother," she said simply. And the agent all but trembled from his swivel chair.

Knew Jeanne
"I did not use my mother's name when I first came to New York looking for a stage job," she began. "I wanted to wait. In fact until this particular matter came up, I had not considered using the name—at least, not for a time. It started in Detroit. I had a chance at a job in town with a musical show, but went on the road later. You see, I could dance and sing. Mother had attended to that. I had been given very special training while abroad. She encouraged me to go on the stage—taught me little gestures and stage tricks.

I saw her about once a year. Sometimes she would come to see me; sometimes I would come to New York and stay quite a time with her. I did not know she was my mother until I grew up. My father took care of me most of the time. Until I found out, I had looked upon Jeanne as an aunt.

Claims Proofs Exist
"Concerning my claim, I have only this to say: those people to whom it makes any difference have seen the birth certificate. They know I was born in a small Colorado town. They know who my father is. But I do not intend to make this public. He is married and well known in the West. I can say also that Jeanne's mother is well aware of my existence, although I do not know her.

"They also know that there is a son—now about 23. When he was about nine, it was considered necessary that he seem to disappear. "Actually he has been reared by others. I, too, have been shifted about the world and have spent most of my time abroad or in Canada."

GOOD WOMEN HELP MANY MEN SUCCEED

Many successful men will admit that at a crucial turning point in their career some woman supplied the impetus that sent them triumphantly on the upgrade. In Columbia Pictures' drama "The Lightning Flyer" which comes to the Appleton theatre on Friday and Saturday of next week, an example of this influence at the right time forms the basis of the story.

In "The Lightning Flyer" the young man in question is the lovable, stagecoach son of a railroad president. When his father gives him a "chance" to "make good," he tosses in to the four winds. Thrown out on his own for this escapade, he applies for work, under an assumed name, in his father's railroad yards. And there is where the woman comes in. In this instance she is the yardmaster's daughter. She not only persuades her dad to give the young stranger a chance, but sees to it that he makes the best of his opportunity.

James Hall heads the cast of this human interest story. Dorothy Sebastian plays opposite.

GILBERT SPLENDID IN "WEST OF BROADWAY"

John Gilbert makes a dashing American vagabond in "West of Broadway," his new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer starring vehicle, which opens at the Elite Theatre 3 days starting Monday.

Beginning with a glimpse of Gilbert in A. E. F. uniform, reminiscent of his role in "The Big Parade," the new offering brims with striking action and dialogue. Gilbert's characterization is most impressive. It is by far, to this reviewer's mind, the most successful of his sound film efforts. El Brendel heads the supporting cast as Gilbert's Swedish man-Friday, and Lois Moran scores as the leading lady.

Though Switzerland must import all the raw material used, macaroni and macaroni products have been manufactured in the country for more than a century.

In "West of Broadway"

"DECEIVER" DOESN'T GET AWAY WITH IT

With Ian Keith, Dorothy Sebastian and Lloyd Hughes heading a tremendous cast, "The Deceiver," the Columbia attraction next Wednesday and Thursday at the Appleton Theatre, relates what befell—and why—a great matinee idol. As "Orlando" he was a sensation. Every woman would gladly have changed places with "Desdemona" even to be strangled to death. And in real life he was the same great and cruel lover. A hero of romance, but a villain to the women who loved him—too long!

The story starts backstage in a New York theatre, just before a matinee performance. Ian Keith, popular star of stage and screen, plays the role of "The Deceiver." He is Reginald Thorpe, star of the show—arrogant and cruel, and very much disliked by men and women. He is particularly hated by Lloyd Hughes. Thorpe has two scores against him. One is that Thorpe is making love to Ina Fontanne. Thorpe's girl and Thorpe's leading lady, Thorpe is tempting Ina (played by Dorothy Sebastian) to go to Hollywood with him, promising to make her his lead in pictures. Thorpe's other score against Thorpe is a purely professional one—Thorpe has never given the boy a chance to play "Orlando."

Your Birthday

BY MARY BLAKE "ARIES"
If April 10th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from noon to 2 p. m., and from 6:30 to 9 p. m. The danger periods are from 7:40 a. m. to 9 a. m., from 3:40 p. m. to 5 p. m., and from 10:50 p. m. to midnight.

Astrological influences on April 10th will tend to have a smoothing out effect in the minds of most people, and there will be a temporary rest from thoughts of strife and worry, through the peaceful enjoyments of the day. It will be a time of healthful and helpful rest which should enable you to meet your duties of tomorrow with renewed effort and enthusiasm.

The child born on this April 10th will possess no rocking-chair energy or fatted spirits. It will be a whirlwind of movement, accompanied by a never ceasing tongue and an abundance of merry laughter. It will be loved by both its playmates and adult friends and relatives, although it will sometimes drive the latter to the point of exasperation.

Born on April 10th, your character is difficult to analyze. You seem to be in possession of two separate and distinct personalities, neither one of which entirely dominates your being. One of you is an exceptionally nice individual, seemingly genuine and fine, with little care for the levities of life. The naughty, less reliable you, is impetuous and headstrong, and makes its appearance at times when your latent weaknesses break through and uproot the foundations of your better self. At such times you feel ashamed, defiant, depressed and impatient with joy, all at the same time.

At all times through life you will follow the line of least resistance in the small affairs of life. You are greatly influenced by the people with whom you mix, and the role you assume is the one expected of you by your friend or associate of the moment. You can be very much the man or woman of the world, interested in the amusements and frivolities of the age; or you can be thoughtful, studious, intellectual companion to someone who is a doer and thinker.

You prefer to use your wit, brains and charm to bring in your material wants more than more laborious methods. You do not despise philosophy or religion, and both will play their part in the ultimate development of your character. Marriage will not bring the contentment and domestic reality of which you had dreamed.

Successful People Born April 10th:
—Benjamin H. Day, founder of New York Sun.
—Lewis Wallace, author.
—Joseph Pulitzer, publisher.
—George Arliss, movie actor.
—Fanny Davis, actress.
—Thomas R. Cobb, Southern lawyer.

If April 11th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:15 a. m. to 10:30 a. m., from 1 p. m. to 2:30 p. m., and from 6:25 p. m. to 8 p. m. The danger periods are from 11 a. m. to 12:25 p. m., and from p. m. to 5:20 p. m.

The stars on April 11th will cast beneficent rays upon people in all stations of life who have the courage and enthusiasm to meet the opportunities presented to them on this date by Fate. The bag of luck will contain a variegated assortment of prizes: love, friendship, money and travel.

The child born on this April 11th will prove that naughty, mischievous children often make the most successful and interesting adults. It will not be underhanded, dishonest or cruel, but it will be strong-willed, adventurous, full of pranks and a romantic schemer. Its shoulders will always be broad enough, however, to assume troubles of its own making.

TIM MCCOY APPEARS IN "SHOTGUN PASS"

Colonel Tim McCoy, the screen's dashing western star and idol of many a young boy, is appearing today and Sunday at the Elite Theatre in "Shotgun Pass," a Columbia picture. It is a story of vengeance and romance in which range wars play an important part in developing and unraveling the plot complications. A herd of stampeding horses is said to furnish much excitement. Production officials report that they were rounded up by Tim McCoy and a band of men from a herd of wild outlaw horses who had strayed from small ranches and were roaming at will in the back ranges of the Sierras.

Tim McCoy enacts the leading role—that of a courageous young ranchman who, through the cowardly murder of his father, is precipitated into a series of range wars. His hostile neighbors are played by Joe Marbra, Monty Vandergrift and Ben Corbett. Virginia Lee Corbin, who will be remembered by many for her charming contributions to the screen as a juvenile actress, plays the leading feminine role.

DRY AGENTS ARREST 76 DURING MARCH

Madison—(P)—Federal prohibition agents reporting to the Madison office arrested 76 persons for violating the prohibition laws in March. Ray J. Nye, deputy administrator, said.

The arrests involved the seizure and destruction of 17 stills, 4,920 gallons of moonshine liquor and alcohol, 578 gallons of beer, and 57,927 gallons of mash. Ten automobiles were confiscated.

A HITCH TO THIS
London—Women who utter at jokes should be haled into court and fined, according to J. B. Hinch, well known psychologist. Hinch says he has found, by "actual research," that "silly women forever giggling at nothing" have been the cause of the majority of divorces. He says that nothing will arouse a man's ire so much as "a woman who is a goose."

In some of your tastes and desires, and will forego much for their fulfillment. As an April 11th being, you should be very fond of music and dancing.

"Cohens and Kellys in Hollywood," Universal's latest of laughs that mirrors the mad, capricious of George Sidney and Charlie Murray in the film capital will open at the Appleton Theatre at the matinee preview tonight and plays Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

Having weathered the storms of Paris, Scotland, Atlantic City and the wilds of Africa in the previous pictures of the "Cohens and Kellys" series, capricious audiences with their hilarious adventures, Sidney and Murray now put their mirth-provoking abilities to the task of out-Hollywooding Hollywood. Advance reports testify to their success in reaching heights of humor that surpass even their funniest escapades in former pictures.

Imagine Cohen and Kelly as big magnates in the picture business. The quiet life the two families are leading in a small middle-western town shattered when Kelly's daughter is suddenly summoned to Hollywood to be a star in pictures? Success comes to the Kelly family in Hollywood. The Cohens follow later, eager to share in the limelight and wealth. Without warning, the Kellys are cast from their lofty position when the talking pictures sweep the country, and prosperity and fame come to the Cohens as a new regime takes the industry. Do their high-hat each other? Manager Stanford of the Appleton promises many surprising developments on the screen.

Death Of Big Citizen Gave Butterworth Start

BY JESSIE HENDERSON
(Copyright, 1932, by Cons. Press)
Hollywood—(P)—"It was the death of a prominent citizen that put me in the movies," said Charles Butterworth today when you inquired how come. Butterworth is one of the real funny comedians. The picture which he is gladening now is the Chevalier film in the production—Love Me Tonight.

"You see, I left Notre Dame college with a diploma to practice law," Butterworth explained for the benefit of people ambitious to get into the talkies. "I thought I had been studying medicine but when I found myself an attorney I became a newspaper reporter. Eager to make good, I reported in very fine style the death of this citizen. It seems I didn't have the facts quite right. The citizen wasn't dead. To my astonishment the editor said accuracy was a requisite of newspaper work, so I went to New York and became an actor."

Tell us more, you urged him. Your favorite stage role, your favorite picture, what you think of American women—

"Sure, I'll tell you more," Butterworth answered. "Try and stop me! My favorite picture is Chester's last stand. I used to hang in our dining room at home."

He Likes Chaplin
"My ambition is to be able to gross my weight on a penny weighing machine, at 110 pounds. If the scale will only give me a one-cent weight, I'll be happy. I like best are any and all of the old time bathing beauties—and did you ever get left? I am not my own favorite screen player. I like Charles Chaplin just a little more better than Butterworth."

If I left the stage, I'd like to write. Letters, I mean. Especially the kind with the personal punch, beginning, "My dear Mr. Butterworth." "Please ask me how I keep fit. I keep fit by wrestling horses. I can throw a horse four out of five falls. A horse has been known to fall down just looking at me."

My hobbies are bobbing apples, and watching men raise sales to high office windows. Oh, yes, and reading pamphlets. Or anything that doesn't involve too much personal labor of a physical kind. My diet is light: three meals a day some days—and what I think of American women is plenty."

And how do you feel about the future of talkies? you inquired, just to make conversation.

"I feel terrible most of the time," Butterworth answered. "about everything. Comedy makes you like that."

MANY BARGAINS IN GOOD BONDS, BABSON STATES

Financial Expert Points Out 10 Reasons for Purchase Now

Babson Park, Fla.—Those investors who fail to take advantage of the bargains in good bonds are missing opportunities which may not be offered again in many years. My organization has recently compiled a list of bonds where safety of principal and regularity of income appear sure. These bonds range from the ultra-conservative to the second grade issues; but in no case does there appear to be much question about continued payment of interest. The astonishing thing is that they range in yield from 3 per cent to 16 1/2 per cent. In other words, the bond market today is widely out of line with true values. I am optimistic on bonds for the following ten reasons:

Bank Failures Stopping

In March there were only 31 bank failures compared with 115 in February, and 342 in January. More banks are reopening now than are closing. Remember that the banks are normally the largest buyers of bonds. Once relieved of the necessity for keeping large amounts of cash, they will seek bond investments. The banks want badly enough to put their funds where they will earn interest and they will do so as the improvement in hoarding and failure situation continues.

Balancing Budget Helps

Congress has made a right-about-face since the sales tax fiasco. Cool heads are prevailing and taxes will be levied which will allow the treasury department to approach a balanced budget. If not actually achieved, this relieves great fear and restores confidence among financial institutions, encouraging them toward renewed bond investment. If the present movement toward cutting Federal operating expenses is vigorously carried through, the whole nation will benefit.

Easy Money Policy

Federal Reserve authorities will do everything in their power to keep interest rates down for two reasons; first, to aid in Government financing, and second to afford easier credit for business purposes in order to stimulate activity. The reduction in the rediscount rate, the cut in the bill rate, and the heavy purchase of Government bonds by Reserve Banks are evidence of this intention. Low interest rates are distinctly favorable to a rising bond market.

Railroads Being Helped

One of the chief causes of the acute weakness in the bond market two months ago was the prospect of railroad receiverships. Operations of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation in lending to the railroads has relieved this fear. Conditions in the railroad bond group should look better from now on even though great care should be taken in selecting individual issues. Periods of temporary weakness are to be expected, but the Government aid is functioning to good effect.

New Tax Program

Prospects of heavier income taxation, while not favorable to investments generally, should have a distinct beneficial effect on state and city bonds; and on Federal Land Bank issues. High tax rates tend always to drive capital into tax-exempt issues. United States Government securities appear to have discounted this factor and may already be selling too high, but many of the municipalities are selling at very attractive yields. The recent trend toward economy in state and city governments will help confidence in their obligations. The day of 6 per cent yields on old-established municipalities may soon be passed.

Bonds Recover First

A study of bonds in previous depressions shows that they are always the first to recover. This was true in 1908-09, 1914-15, and 1921-22. It will be true again in the recovery from this depression. In fact, the bond recovery that has already taken place is a significant sign of better times to come.

Yields Are Attractive

As I pointed out, good bonds may be had to yield anywhere from 3 to 16 per cent. Only once or twice in half a century is there such a chance for a combination of conservative investment with prospects of appreciation as the bond market now affords. Diversification, of course, is necessary, but careful choosing will pay real rewards. These yields are distinctly abnormal and will be looked back on in future years as the greatest chance of a lifetime.

Income Worth More

Under usual conditions currency, low commodity prices would mean higher bond prices. This shows that the extreme low prices for good bonds are the result of fear psychology more than anything else. Income from a bond yielding 6 per cent today is worth as much in buying power as one yielding 8 per cent in 1929, owing to the drop in commodity prices. This further emphasizes the unusualness of the situation and should stimulate the alert buyer.

Idle Funds Back

There is a tremendous accumulation of idle funds, either in cash or in short-term maturities merely awaiting for restored confidence to enter the bond market in large volume. The recent betterment in banking, credit, railroad finances, and the move to balance the Government budget, all point toward restoration of confidence. This means ultimately the release of a tremendous potential buying power that

HOMING MIGRANTS FILL BREAD LINES OF IRISH CAPITAL

Dublin —(P)—Many of the Irishmen who sailed so blithely from Erin's shores to America a few years ago are returning to the Emerald Isle, down and out.

One ship recently brought 300 disheartened Irishmen who felt it better to see no work in their homeland than in foreign ports. Alfred Byrne, Lord Mayor of Dublin, says the country faces a new problem in feeding and housing returned emigrants.

He related that a young fellow whom he had helped get a passport to go to America four years ago recently called at Mansion House looking for a job and said: "It is better to be standing in a food queue in your own country than in a foreign country where you are jeered at."

LITHUANIA IS FREE OF ECONOMIC CRISIS

Population Produces Almost All That It Needs from the Soil

Kaunas, Lithuania —(P)—A happy oasis in the desert of world economic depression is Lithuania, mid-European state of 2,200,000 inhabitants, with an area not quite as large as that of West Virginia.

"We hardly notice that there is an economic crisis," said Dr. Pranas Dalilis, departmental director at the Lithuanian Foreign Office. "The very fact that some primitive social and economic conditions obtain with us than with highly industrialized states has proven a great boon."

"This country is almost entirely agricultural. All told we have only 3,000 industrial workers, and 35 per cent of our population lives on farms."

"The farmer produces for himself what he needs, so we have been able to regulate our imports according to our exports. We could, in fact, at any time stop imports altogether if that were necessary."

"Every country bordering upon us or near us has had to adopt stringent measures against the exportation of capital, but not Lithuania. The lit continues to be worth ten American cents, as it always was."

"Our foreign debt consists merely of $10,000,000 which we borrowed from the United States. That represents only about 10 per cent of our annual budget. Besides, we have 62 years in which to pay it, and the Hoover moratorium gave us an extra year."

SALVATION ARMY TO DEDICATE NEW HOMES

Milwaukee —(P)—Plans for the dedication of two new Salvation Army buildings at Superior, Wis., and at Eau Claire, Wis., have been announced here by Brig. Bertram C. Rodda, Salvation Army divisional commander for the Wisconsin-Upper Michigan area.

The Superior Army headquarters, to be opened in the old Superior City Mission recently purchased by the Salvation Army for $35,000, and now being remodeled and renovated, will be dedicated on Sunday afternoon, April 17. Clough Gates is president of the Superior Army Advisory board which has the project in hand.

A new Army branch out-post building will be dedicated at Eau Claire on Monday night, April 18.

LOWER COSTS, MORE REVENUE BUDGET NEEDS

Lawrence Outlines Essential Steps in Balancing U. S. Budget

(In this, the last of a series of twelve articles on Balancing the Budget, David Lawrence summarizes the possible ways by which economic conditions made and new revenues developed.)

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—To balance the budget two steps are essential—first, reduction of expenditures, and second, development of new sources of revenue.

For nearly a decade now the federal government has accumulated surpluses every year, so there has been no question about balancing the budget. Now, however, with the pinch of the depression, income tax receipts have fallen off and for the next three years at least the attention of the whole country is going to be focused on ways and means of keeping expenditures below receipts.

The problem has become important entirely apart from the question of taxation. It has become worldwide in its significance. People all over the world are looking critically at the government of the United States with a two billion dollar deficit—the biggest peace-time deficiency in the history of the world for any government.

Government securities rise and fall on the strength of federal credit. If the budget is balanced, government credit is naturally strengthened.

Two Schools Of Thought

When the depression first began, two schools of thought arose—those that believed that by spending more money, particularly on public works and by increasing the public debt, namely borrowing huge sums through the sale of bonds, business could be restored quickly. This theory has been very largely refuted by the results of already large expenditures made as a stimulus to unemployment. The billion dollar payments voted for veterans a year ago were intended to put money in circulation and thus restore purchasing power. Similarly, expenditures for public works all over the country have been urged on the same ground.

The second school of thought argued that the way out of the depression lay in reduced expenditures, balanced budgets and relief for the taxpayer. In other words, it was thought that increased purchasing power would come through the revival of business itself, from the restoration of credit confidence through the example of balanced budgets from the federal government down to the state and local governments and even to individual budgets. Whether or not to continue borrowing to meet operating deficits has been one of the underlying credit problems of the country.

Gradually the second school of thought has reached the ascendancy and now public sentiment is insisting upon a reduction of expenditures and such a spreading of the tax burden as will bring in the revenues with the least possible injury to the economic structure.

What Must Be Done

Here are the steps that may or may not be taken but which at present seem to be essential to the working out of a balanced budget, not only this year but next year and the year after.

First, some reduction of federal salaries and payrolls from top to bottom. It has been contended that this would not yield very much revenue of economy. It is, however, of vast importance as a gesture of cooperation. Public opinion is growing insistent on this point because so many people in private industry have accepted cuts.

Second, an elimination of useless activities. Consolidation of bureaus and reorganizations have been advocated for ten years without avail. A survey to this end can be made by congressional economy committees and some of the work is now being done.

POLISH CITIES USE CANDLES IN STRIKE AGAINST NEW RATES

Warsaw —(P)—Tallow candles and old fashioned kerosene lamps have come into their own again in many Polish cities which are boycotting electricity in order to force reduced rates.

Piotrkow, near Warsaw, with some 40,000 inhabitants, was the first to start the strike. All movies were closed and the entire population returned to candles and kerosene.

Tomaszow, a large factory town in the Lodz province, as well as Kalisz and Premysl have also gone on strike. Czenstochowa, with more than 100,000 inhabitants, is about to follow suit and Vilno is also considering a boycott.

Piotrkow and Kalisz, where the strike is complete, are almost in darkness.

As one means of providing additional revenue to cover the increasing cost of unemployment relief, the French government has advanced the price of safety matches 33 1/3 per cent.

In other words, there will be no increase in the national debt and similarly, there will be no progress made toward a reduction of the public debt until July 1, 1933, when it is expected that the new budget for that year will carry at least a half-billion dollars for the cutting down of the federal debt.

When that date will have arrived and it is apparent that the taxes for the new fiscal year beginning July 1, next, are sufficiently productive to yield more than the expected revenues, it is quite possible that the present tax laws will be retained as a safeguard throughout the fiscal year July 1933 to July 1934. In other words, the present plan calls for new taxes and for as long a period as may be necessary to keep the budget balanced and yield a substantial surplus.
